

Intimate Freedom

by Mark Josepchs-Serra

INTIMATE FREEDOM

THE MASCULINE, THE FEMENINE AND CULTURAL TRANSFORMATION

BY MARK JOSEPHS-SERRA

180 pages

Current affairs - Relationships

Full English ms. available

- Very useful for who are in charge of dependent persons.
- Includes over hundred caregivers' testimonies about what they have learned.
- Easy to read; the author uses storytelling to reach a wide public.

SYNOPSIS

Our streets are masculine, our cars, our aeroplanes, our days, our daries, our money and guns and lack of looking into each other's eyes, our exam systems and career paths, our specialisation, our fragmentation, our sanitised food... All of it is a symptom of a fundamental masculine-dominant imbalance in our heads and hearts and blood cells and lifestyles.

Actually, the familiar madness we live in, and are all perpetuating, men and women, is not being driven by the dignity and benevolence of the Mature Masculine, it's being driven by an immature, insecure masculinity. We're suffering the dominance of the immature-masculine, accompanied by a feminity that is submissive and/or collusive, and which has little if any sense of the antidote it holds.

The book explains how, in profound, realistic ways, we can facilitate the collective healing of The Masculine and Femenine, and come to experience the beauty and power of their creative intercourse –so that human civilisation can be a symphony, and not a cacophony, on this earth. This book is the key note for multigenerational social reform to take us to our most longer-for, human togetherness.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Mark Joseph-Serra ('Josephs' from his Jewish parents and 'Serra' for his Spanish wife) was born in London. He has a degree in Compared Religions, was monk and studied Psychology. He founded, along with his wife, The Culture of Honouring, the social movement for the honouring of both The Masculine and The Femenine.

www.cultureofhonouring.co.uk