■ At the age of 23, he manages his own company, founded by him and which is present in 52 countries.

SYNOPSIS

The author, a young, 23 year old entrepreneur, recounts all the process from the moment we get an idea which makes us hesitate between it being a waste of time or something that will change the world, until the moment we feel the adventure is over.

The book is both a manual for entrepreneurs and an ode to optimism for those who don't dare to take the step to becoming an entrepreneur. This book deals with themes such as everyday creativity in an invigorating and humorous way. It tells us the steps to making our ideas flow, the consequences of success and failure and all the pitfalls which aspirants to entrepreneurship generally find in their way.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Pau Garcia-Milà, created the foundations for eyeOS, along with a friend, when he was just 17. This innovative operating system would, years later, become the cloud computing phenomena. He was expelled from his course in Computer Engineering and years later received the first grant at the ESADE Entrepreneurship Institute. Later he studied at the Centre for Entrepreneurial Learning at Cambridge University. In his first five years as an entrepreneur, he has been distinguished with prestigious prizes.
